

This volume provides a microcosm of his Lordship's intellectual and illuminating judgments which demonstrate the articulation of his judicial philosophy throughout the years. It makes for fascinating reading to those within and outside the field of law. The volume is skillfully edited by Alex Chang Esq. and Khoo Guan Huat Esq. prominent legal practitioners and senior members of the Bar.

I am glad that the footprint of Vincent Ng will not fade away in the shifting sands of time but will be etched on sterner substances, tangible and enduring.

Vincent Ng has been remarkable for his prodigious productivity of written decisions and quite clearly what have been reproduced as some footprints of differing pressures do not do justice to a man who loves the law, respects the law and who has expounded the law. More importantly he has, like many Judges, contributed to the dispensation of justice according to law between countless litigators.

I first met Vincent Ng shortly after he became Judge of the High Court. He was courteous as he still is. He was quiet but he is not that now. He did not display his religiosity, clearly rightly so as a Judge, but he was and is spiritual and is strong in his ethical views.

Over the years one could hear him at Judges' meetings. Among Judges, he was one of the few voices for Judges who could not speak or would not speak. Those were mostly troubling days. After his long stint in Penang this senior High Court Judge was sent to Alor Setar. Kuala Lumpur was a more logical place for
